

Hansa Names New Head of Europe, Middle East and Africa

By Breakbulk Staff on January 29, 2015

Hansa Heavy Lift has appointed Maximilian Harmstorf as head of its Europe, Middle East and Africa (EMEA) region. Harmstorf is based in Hamburg, Germany.

Harmstorf has over a decade of experience in the maritime industry and spent eight years in Asia in senior management roles for a number of brokers and shipping lines.

He joined Hansa Heavy Lift in 2014 as Senior Chartering Manager in Singapore and his appointment completes Hansa Heavy Lift's restructure into regional divisions including EMEA, Asia Pacific (APAC) and the Americas.

Maximilian said he was looking forward to working with the Hansa team in Europe to develop solutions for customers with increasingly complex and highly sophisticated transportation requirements.

Roger Iliffe, Hansa Heavy Lift CEO, said he was looking forward to a strong 2015 backed by an experienced team at the helm of the company's new regional divisions and a network of exclusive agents worldwide.

"We have strengthened the company and improved our performance and we are excited about the future," Iliffe said.
